

Dear Transplant Nurses,

Because of your efforts there are thousands of people leading active lives that normally would have not existed. We at TSI are a group solely comprised of donor families and organ recipients and recognize the important part of the puzzle the transplant nurse plays in the transplant process.

Many of us spent months in the hospital waiting for our transplants. During our stays we've experienced the comforting care given to us by you, our angels of medicine. Whether you were administering medications, assisting in operations or just talking to us in times of despair, it just seemed you were always there at the right time.

Others of our group were on the unfortunate end of the transplant experience....they are the donor families. The advice and comfort experienced by these families from you eased their tragedies while keeping them totally informed.

There aren't enough ways to express our gratitude for the works performed by you, the transplant nurse, which is done on a daily basis throughout our nation. We will always be indebted to you and you will be remembered in our prayers forever.

Yours truly,

Frank Bortino
